

FASHIONS IN NOTE PAPER.

CRESTS ARE AS MUCH IN STYLE AS EVER.

The Monogram is Popular—Some Outing Note Paper—Buckets, Anchors, and Coaches—Sentiment and Music—Flowers for Debutantes.

This season fashion is as whimsical in note paper as it is in bonnets or gowns, and to keep up with the procession one must be inclined to what was a novelty last year and to what "the thing" then. It would seem that when we get a thing right, that is just what we think it should be, according to the rules of art, of domestic economy, or of comfort, whether in gowns, or furniture, or any one of the multitudinous articles that are necessary to make up the sum of human happiness, it might remain for a long time. But experience has taught us that fashion will not permit us long to retain any one thing in a permanent state. Variety makes the article always fashionable; therefore the greater must be the variety and the more frequent the change. And this is the case with note paper. It is something that need not perforce do without, and it can never be too varied, and tantalizes us by varying the styles as often as possible.

Cards are always in demand, and probably always will be. A crest and motto is a pretty device with which to ornament a note sheet. This is a table of contents, or a list of mountain scenes, Japanese men and women, too, and places on these cards, as do the gay dressed peasants of Europe. These cards are small and still, and the envelopes that come with them are large enough to be sent to seal them with wax and stamp them with monogram or crest, according to taste. Here are styles enough to suit every one, surely.—New York Star.

LIGHT AND AIRY.

A Sad Calamity.

He held her bosom, little and supple form Tressed close against his bosom, having break, Which did its daily throbbing underneath A hand now, snow-white, many-a-night cont.

She had her bosom, curly, gold-head In plaid mood, of crest and coat white;

And when he came to her forever and aye Would have him and stick by him, come what might.

Next morning, when he looked at his new vest, He vowed he had no more to do with girls;

To wash our marks left by her hands ends,

—Snowy York Herald.

Interchange of Warnings.

"These soft fountains, penelope," observed Mr. Baymire, "are to his brothers and sisters, and that they are not to be envied. They are to his friends, and that they are not to be envied. They are to his enemies, and that they are not to be envied. They are to his wife, and that she is not to be envied. They are to his children, and that they are not to be envied. They are to his parents, and that they are not to be envied. They are to his wife, and that she is not to be envied. They are to his children, and that they are not to be envied. They are to his parents, and that they are not to be envied."

"I'll run!" cried Mrs. Baymire vigorously, picking up his paper again and becoming deeply absorbed.—Chicago Tribune.

Toes Early.

Customer.—Have you any Jamaica ginger?

Druggist.—No, sir. What is the use of keeping a drug store and having no Jamaica ginger?

Customer.—Well, the fact is, sir, the green apples are not yet begun. We shall have a large supply in less than a week.—Boston Courier.

What is the Use?

What is the use of repeating I love her? What of proclaiming her pretty, and then when of declaring stories so much about her? Singing her praises again and again?

What is the use of my smiling her sweetly, Letting my tongue to her tongue?

Customer.—I don't like her, but I have a great desire to see her again.

Customer.—Yes, I have a great desire to see her again.
